The News Grows Better and Better.

Thirty-five Thousand Majority Claimed by the Democrats.

And Twelve out of the Twenty-one Congressmen Elected.

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.
CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 11, 1882.

The news grows better and better. It is now considered certain that the Democrats have elected twelve congressmen out of a delegation of twenty-one, and all indications point to the fact that the Democratic majority in the state will not be less than thirty-five thousand.

Cincinnati Freie Press: That what was expected has come to pass. The Democrats have been victorious in the state and county—in the former with a majority of 30,000, and in the latter with about 3,000. The result of yesterday's election is an eye opener for Dick Smith, Foster, Townsend, McDougall, and the like.

Cincinnati Commercial October 11th: It is probable that the Republicans yesterday lost in Ohio control of the House of Representatives and possibly with that the next Presidency. There was no occasion whatever for thus placing in peril the incalculable interests of the country at large.

N. Y. World: The burial beyond any possibility of political resurrection of that plausible acrobat, Governor Foster will be hailed with satisfaction, not by the Democrats alone, but by all decent and courageous Republicans.

N. Y. Times: The Republican will have to accept the responsibility for the consequence of the bungling way in which they have dealt with the liquor question.

N. Y. Star: The Republican reverse in Ohio will be a heavy blow to the hopes of that party here. It is significant of the changes taking place in the public sentiment of the country.

N. Y. Herald: The personal interests and political principles were placed in opposition by nearly every one of the numerous regular ticket and it was a bad day for candidates who expected to be carried along by the company in which their names appeared. On thing seems certain, the distilleries and brewers in Ohio are not to be closed just yet by the public vote, and of this the defeated party is probably about as glad as the victors.

N. Y. Sun: There is no open exhibition of strife seen in the several other states between the Stalwart and anti-Stalwart factions, nor is the Democracy of the state distracted by faction leaders. Many Republican voters, especially German-American voters, took sides with the Democracy on the temperance question.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Coupling the voice of Ohio with probable Democratic victory in New York and Pennsylvania, the eyes of the people look to Democratic control of the Government at Washington. The Democratic party of the United States was swindled out of the Presidency to which it elected Tilden, in 1876, and the Presidential election of 1880 showed such a close popular balance that we may well look to Democratic control after 1884. The tide has been turning for six years, and the Democratic flood appears to be upon us.—Not the least important feature of the contest in Ohio was the fight for the representation in congress. The Republican legislature redistricted the state under the decennial apportionment with a view to keeping the Democracy in a meager minority. The gerrymander has been handsomely rebuked.

Cincinnati Gazette: In every part of the state almost there have been Republican losses, and even on the Western Reserve and in strong temperance districts the alliance of the Democrats with the liquor interest has not been sufficient to save the Republican party from defeat.—The question, too, of restricting and regulating the liquor traffic, which was a live and most important issue, was not boldly presented. While it did all the mischief that could be accomplished on one side, it did not, by reason of the divided Republican front, do near all the good that might have been secured on the other.

Cincinnati Volksblatt: The Gazette is the grave-digger of the Republican party.—The defeat of the Republican party is bitter, but well deserved.—Had the advice of the German press been listened to, the Republicans would not have been defeated.—Yesterday's election is the grandest and most telling demonstration ever made in the cause of personal liberty.—In the victory of yesterday's state election, the friends of personal liberty have won a fight whose importance cannot be too highly appreciated. It is no common victory. It is not a party victory. It is a victory of principle.

Says the Carlisle Mercury:

We understand that the young bachelor candidate for the Legislature in Fleming county is soon to wed one of Mason county's fairest daughters. If reports are correct, and we have no reason to doubt them, Fleming's aspiring son ought to be happy. We know of several Nicholas boys that would gladly divide honors with him.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. Conard Phister and Mr. Kirker are in Maysville to-day.

Rev. Henry M. Scudder was in Maysville this morning.

Mr. Charles H. Stine will leave on Saturday to attend medical lectures at Hospital College, Louisville.

Buffalo Bill.

This noted scout and guide, whose handsome personal appearance and genial bearing is well-known to all and whose many strange and romantic incidents make a life which is more fit to adorn the pages of romance than any fancy of the brain which could suggest any of the heroes of the "Leatherstocking" tales, will be here Sept. 16th. Born upon the western prairies, and reared amid wild scenes of tumult, his father murdered in the early days when Kansas, with the strength of a young giant was shaking off the yoke of African slavery, a trained Indian fighter, and having served his young state in earliest manhood as a trusted and honored member of the Legislature, it is probable that William F. Cody is as well acquainted with all that pertains to the west as any other living man.

His acquaintance and fame as a great western scout and actor are as broad as the nation. Cody, although young in years, has filled a prominent place in the history of the west. His services to the United States have been far in excess of the compensation received. His gentlemanly instincts, linked with his good nature and ability, make him a great friend of General Phil. Sheridan. So polished and gentlemanly in manners, combined with his fitness, he was made by the Government a special guide to go with the Duke Alexis, of Russia, on his celebrated buffalo hunt through the West.

The bears have got into the New York fresh meat market. Imports of the western product have played havoc with prices. On Tuesday good meat sold for 4½ cents a pound, or 7 cents cheaper than it was five months ago. Local butchers are roaring dismally.

A Card.

In a recent issue of the BULLETIN, I notice an advertisement by the newly appointed agent of Johnston & Co., which requires some correction, he states that the agency heretofore represented by me, was transferred to himself; this is a mistake, I had given up the Johnston & Co's, agency sometime before, for the purpose of taking the management of the branch house of Messrs. Smith & Nixon, the oldest and most responsible piano house in Cincinnati. While admiring the zeal and enterprise of Mr. Bradden in lauding his goods, and willing to concede to him all the merit they may possess, I will state that I gave up the Johnston organ, (which has not been known as such above eight months) in order to sell the justly celebrated Burdett, an organ whose world wide reputation, and real merit, earned by years of trial, requires no puffing; the 3,000 now in use in the city of Philadelphia alone, (300 of these in schools, halls and chapels) speak for themselves. All those who love music better than noise are invited to criticise.

L. F. METZGER.

Tuesday afternoon a crazy man, armed with a sharp pair of carpenter's compasses, rushed through Fourteenth street, New York, stabbing right and left. The sidewalks were crowded. Six persons, all women, were injured, three of them seriously, and one, the wife of the policeman who arrested the madman, is supposed to have received fatal wounds.
